

Moroccan Transport Company denies racist accusations

Morocco's transport company CTM denied as false news the information saying that it issued a notice barring access of Sub-Saharanans to its busses.

A post was shared on Moroccan social media saying that Moroccan bus companies were asked not to transport Sub-Saharanans to the north, a major departure for migrants to Europe.

CTM said the notice is not theirs and that their values prevent them from such racist actions.

"Our values and ethics are against any kind of discrimination," the company said.
